Taxation Policy

Recently, many countries concern about tax erosion caused by the allocation of taxable profit from the places where the commercial activity is carried out to different places. These concerns also cause financial pressure on the public budgets.

Within this context, the countries that are the members of G20 have requested the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) to review the international tax rules in order to regulate the weaknesses in the tax system. The Company has adopted it as a principle to work in compliance with the tax-related regulations in the countries where it operates by taking into account the international tax system advice published by the OECD.

This discipline supports the Decent Work and Economic Growth that is one of the Sustainable Development Goals as it contributes to the financing of the public needs and the society accordingly.

- The Company submits the tax returns in a timely basis and all taxes are paid in time in all countries where the Company operates.
- The necessary technological infrastructure has been established for the planning and management of additional taxes.
- Central planning and management is used for managing the additional taxes on a country basis.
